Well, this is really something that could be solved in the TYPO3 package. But there should be no automatism - imagine you'd be logged out whenever you create a new user in the system... This is a special case, as running the setup seems to imply a "fresh system", but that's not really the case.

The solution to this is to clear a user's session as soon as the account is destroyed. This is covered by #5442.
