Subject:	Mark functions "textStyle" and "tableStyle" as deprecated
Description	while writing that 45 minutes tutorial I stumbled upon some typoScript functions I had never seen before. I googled them and some where really outdated, mainly textStyle (generates (!!)Tags), tableStyle und addParams (the function "addParams" in opposite to the parameter "addParams", they seem in fact to be different). So my question is: Are these officially deprecated? If not, shouldn't they be? If so, should TSref not be updated to reflect that? (issue imported from #M8931)

History

#1 - 2013-06-18 15:24 - Chris topher

- Project changed from Core to TypoScript Reference (TSref)
- Target version deleted (0)

"textStyle", "tableStyle" and "addParams" are the functions from here.

- "textStyle", "tableStyle" should become deprecated; what they offer should today be done via CSS.
- "addParams" allows to add attributes to any HTML tag. The way how you manipulate the tags is kind of "ugly" (addParams._offset = -2). The implementation also is incomplete; how can I manipulate 2 different html tags at the same time? Two different values for addParams._offset are not possible. And I personally never had a need to use that myself. Replacement?

=> Deprecation notes should be added to the according TypoScript functions, so that they can be removed in the future.

When the feature is in I will take care of the documentation.
