Affected Flow version: Git master
Subject:	PersistenceQueryRewritingAspect does not support count() correctly
Description
If the aspect intercepts a count() method and the result (because of lacking access rights) would be "none", the aspect returns an EmptyQueryResult object which in turn can not be cast into an integer by the client code.

[BUGFIX] PersistenceQueryRewritingAspect now supports count(0)

If the aspect intercepted a count() method and the result (because of lacking access rights) would be "none", the aspect returned an EmptyQueryResult object which in turn could not be cast into an integer by the client code.

This patch now correctly returns a 0 in that case.
