Subject:	Misleading error message when calling inactive package
Description
When trying to use an inactive package you currently get a "404 Not Found - No controller could be resolved which would match your request." It would be awesome to get a hint at package activation, the message should inform about the package not being available/active. After all that's different from the package being available but the controller not.

Please have a look at the attached patch.

It brings some extensive changes to the way the controller is resolved and I'm not perfectly sure about the implementation.

But IMO the request was involved too much in package/controller determination anyways...

Maybe the request should have no dependency to the PackageManager at all!?
