Subject:	PropertyMapper chokes on Objects that are already converted inside an collection

Description

The PropertyMapper still chokes on objects which are already converted if it's inside an collection/array.

The PropertyMapper should skip the mapping if the source is already an instance of the target.

[BUGFIX] PropertyMapper should be able to work with recursive already-converted objects

If f.e. an array of already converted objects is passed into the PropertyMapper, a fatal error will be thrown.

Thus, we move the check from convert() to doMapping() such that it works recursively.
