Subject:	Move default columns to a backend_layout configuration
Description	Following the thread http://lists.typo3.org/pipermail/typo3-team-core/2012-August/052131.html We came up with a concept of migrating the default 1,0,2,3 column to a backend_layout configuration This makes it easier to work with the db_layout.php class, as there will be only one way to render the columns. This task is a part of implementing drag'n'drop functionality, as this will clean up some code output and only have 1(!) markup

[FEATURE] UI changes to "Page" module

This patch covers the following changes

- Move default column layout to a backend_layout configuration (#39603)
- Change the db_layout code, to use the default backend_layout (#39603)
- Make UI changes to the columns rendering (#38013)

The move of default column layout to a backend_layout is in order to ease the styling.
