This change implements a UserFactory that consistently creates User objects for different use cases.

Furthermore, it removes the restriction of only-alphanumeric usernames in the setup tool.

The problem is caused by different areas where a User is created (Command controller, Setup and User Management). The necessary replacement of characters from the account identifier is only done in the UserCommandController.

I would suggest to implement a UserFactory or to set the identifier on the User which will then set the workspace name inside the model consistently.
