PHP Version:
Has patch:	No
Complexity:
Subject:	Context dependant Package states

Description

It should be possible to (de)activate packages for certain contexts only.
Suggested PackageStates.php syntax:

```
1 return array (
2  'packages' =>
3  array (
4   'Foo.Bar' =>
5   array (
6    'manifestPath' => '',
7    'state' => 'inactive',
8    'packagePath' => 'Application/Foo.Bar/',
9    'classesPath' => 'Classes/',
10   ),
11   'Bar.Baz' =>
12   array (
13    'manifestPath' => '',
14    'state' => 'active',
15    'overriddenStateByContext' => array(
16     'Production' => 'inactive',
17    ),
18    'packagePath' => 'Application/Bar.Baz/',
19    'classesPath' => 'Classes/',
20   ),
21 // ...
```

As discussed the PackageStates.php syntax should be rather like:

```
1 return array (
2  'packages' =>
3  array (
4   'Foo.Bar' =>
```

```
 5  array (
 6    'manifestPath' => '',
 7    'state' => array(
 8      'default' => 'inactive',
 9    ),
10    'packagePath' => 'Application/Foo.Bar/',
11    'classesPath' => 'Classes/',
12   ),
13  'Bar.Baz' =>
14  array (
15    'manifestPath' => '',
16    'state' => array(
17      'default' => 'inactive',
18      'Production' => 'active',
19    ),
20    'packagePath' => 'Application/Bar.Baz/',
21    'classesPath' => 'Classes/',
22   ),
23// ...
```

The package:(de)activate commands need to be adjusted to accept a context flag:

```
./flow package:activate Foo.Bar --context Production
./flow package:deactivate Foo.Bar --context Production
```
