Subject:	Creating page in the pagetree works not properly after editing the nodename
Description	When a nodename is changed in the inspector, the pagetree panel is closed and the tree reinitialized. Because of this the click events which are bind to the toolbar, are that often initialized and called as the tree. So many new pages are added to the tree on the clientside and on on the serverside, which leads to confusion. The solution is to unbind the click events in the toolbar when the pagetree is resetted.

[BUGFIX] Editing node name leads to bugs for creating pages

This change replaces the unsatisfactory closing of the page tree when editing a node's name. Instead the node is updated in the tree and if it has subpages it is reloaded after the page has been reloaded.
