Subject:	Textbook: In-Page Editing
Description
Headline and copytext
Headline: Inline editing
Copy: You won't need a manual or training to edit content in TYPO3 Neos - because you already know how to do that. It is as easy as clicking onto the part you wish to edit - and start. TYPO3 Neos' ingenious editing interface lets you focus on your task without you having to jump through hoops because your CMS tells you to do so. What you write is what you get.
Idea and Reasoning
Focus on ease of use and the natural, organic way of editing content. Intro.js (usablica.github.io/intro.js/) could show the user around the backend in a fancy way
Icon and image style
<ul style="list-style-type: none">- emotional- show hands etc.

I'm okay with the "don't think - do" but I have a suggestion here. To me it could be either version.

I like the idea with "no training" better.

Currently a lot of folks complain about CMS being too bloaty and complex, so we should tackle these guys.

Attached a layout for this section, Workspace with i-Pad and Coffee cup. As additional idea we also added a headline which shows the benefit directly. Onepage section Nr. 2.
