Subject: Developer documents

Description

Since we've now created a few documents for the new UI/UX and styling implementation we should consider where to put documents like that. They're mostly for developers/designers working on Neos and shouldn't be places for discussion. We need to be a little careful since some of the UI stuff should probably only be released to those interested in contributing. But in general after the release of 1.0 we should have a place for these publicly.

My suggestion:

- Create page on neos.typo3.org with links to specific Google documents
- Make documents read only and share to specific people if they need editing rights
- Disable commenting
- Keep the UI document within the team until release of 1.0
