Subject:	kickstarter creates not valid code
Description

i just wanted to create a class named "List" which was possible but then the next action crashed with an exeption since you cannot create a class named "List".

I found out that you cannot use those key words:
http://www.php.net/manual/en/reserved.keywords.php
so i would suggest to write a validator, that checks if a keyword is used when creating a new class via the command line.

[BUGFIX] Class names not checked against reserved words

Generating a Model class did not check against the reserved words that exist in PHP, which led to Classes like "List" which cannot exist according to the PHP specification.

This only applies to Model classes, as all other generated classes will have a suffix which does not trigger this issue. For example:

- ListCommandController

- ListController

- ListRepository
