Subject:	Passwords containing a % should throw an Error
Description

If you password contains a "%" the expect command won't work as the passwords "%" will be used by the sprintf...

pretty hard to catch so a password check would avoid frustrating moments... like the one I just had...

if you point me to the correct place where to implement this I could certainly do this.

I guess you should not throw an exception here, but instead mask the % for sprintf by doubling it.
