Subject:	Fine tune page redirection after pasting a node
Description
Currently Neos redirects the user to the parent document to which the node was pasted. This seems to be the best behaviour, but causes issues if a node is pasted in a collection that is actually positioned on another page. This could for example when a static footer is used that stores the nodes for the footer on the homepage, but enables editing of the footer on subpages too. In this usecase the user would be redirected to the homepage if a node is pasted into the footer.
