Subject:	Environment variables prefixed with REDIRECT_ ignored
Description
Using Apache mod_rewrite in certain setups (mostly PHP in CGI mode) makes environment variables from original requests available in the target request as REDIRECT_<envvar>, thus e.g. setting TYPO3_DISABLED_CORE_UPDATER becomes REDIRECT_TYPO3_DISABLED_CORE_UPDATER. This should be handled transparently by GeneralUtility::getIndpEnv() and relevant locations be updated (e.g. TYPO3_CONTEXT, TYPO3_DISABLE_CORE_UPDATER).

[BUGFIX] Use REDIRECT_ prefix as fallback for environment variables

The core uses values of environment variables for disabling the core updater and to determine the application context.

When setting the variable with mod_rewrite, certain server environments prefix the variable name with REDIRECT_.

To ensure compatibility for this case, REDIRECT_ prefix is prepended as a fallback if the regular variable is not set.
