TYPO3 Flow Base Distribution - Bug # 55369

Status:	Resolved	Priority:	Must have

Affected Flow version:	Flow 2.0.0
Subject:	Cookies not created if cookie lifetime is set

Description

I have a flow based website and have increased the session timeout to 1 day. Cookies were still session only so I changed the cookie duration to one day too (I want users to be logged in even after closing the tab/browser). Whenever I do this, no cookie is created, and uses can't login.

I tried changing the value directly in typo3/flow/configuration settings, in flow/congiguration and my packages configuration. Everytime the cookie is not made. If I remove the lifetime, the cookie is created. I also tried copying the whole cookie "array" to the settings in case you have to oevrwrite all cookie values in settings. This also didn't work.

I think this is a bug. No error is shown, nothing in the server error log or the flow's system development log.

In the security log I see:

    14-01-27 19:43:15 3329   127.0.0.1   NOTICE   TYPO3.Flow   Successfully authenticated token: Username: "admin"

    14-01-27 19:43:16 3329   127.0.0.1   INFO   Flow   No account authenticated

[BUGFIX] Set Max-Age for Cookies

If the configured session cookie lifetime is > 0, the Max-Age property of the cookie is set accordingly in the response header.

Before this change the lifetime would be used as the expiry time, leading to cookies having session lifetime only.
