Subject:	Framework Packages aren't sorted properly

Description
In the package dependency resolver, the method buildDependencyGraph builds the dependency graph first for the framework packages and afterwards for all left packages.   The filtering if a package is a framework package happens by comparing the package path with PATH_typo3 and a sysext folder contant. But as PATH_typo3 is absolute and the package path from the package states configuration is relative to PATH_site, this filter does not work.

[BUGFIX] Framework Packages aren't sorted properly

In the package dependency resolver, the method buildDependencyGraph builds the dependency graph first for the framework packages and afterwards for all left packages.

The filtering if a package is a framework package happens by comparing the package path with PATH_typo3 and a sysext folder contant. But as PATH_typo3 is absolute and the package path from the package states configuration is relative to PATH_site, this filter does not work.

The patch changes the path to a relativ one.
