Subject:	Make composer class loading case insensitive

Description
To fix an edge case where wrong casing of a class name could still have been worked in TYPO3 6.2, we change the composer class loader which is shipped by default to allow case insensitive class loading of core classes. This behavior can be switched on and off for fully composer based projects It is off by default (which will be the case in master) and on for TYPO3 6.2 for full backwards compatibility.

[BUGFIX] Make composer class loading case insensitive

To fix an edge case where wrong casing of a class name in third party code did not produce a fatal error in TYPO3 6.2, we change the composer class loader which is shipped by default to allow case insensitive class loading of core classes.

This behavior can be switched on and off for fully composer based projects.
It is off by default (which will be the case in master) and on in TYPO3 6.2 for full backwards compatibility.
