Affected Flow version:
Subject:	Unit test failures because sys_get_temp_dir() doesn't always return directory name with trailing slash
Description
php function sys_get_temp_dir() usually returns something like '/tmp/', but on some systems the trailing slash is missing (for me: a debian stable box, self compiled php 5.3.2, running as cgi). This leads to failing tests, eg. in Cache\Backend\PdoBackendTest This could be easily fixed by always adding a slash (see attached patch), but leads to double slashes if the method returns with trailing slash. Maybe it would be better to add / use some wrapper method to add the slash if it's missing?

Revision 6d07da22 - 2010-07-28 13:00 - Andreas Förthner

[~BUGFIX] FLOW3: Various tests are now using the concatenatePaths utility method when building a path to the temp directory. This resolves #8913.
